Press Release November 3, 2010 DNA Foundation

The Delta Nu Alpha Foundation announces the award of three transportation and logistics scholarships. The awards are named for persons making significant contributions to DNA and the industry during their lifetimes. Receiving the Terry Priest Award is Jason Rhodes - University of North Texas; Cathy Davis Award is Kyle Groothuis<sup>1</sup> - University of North Florida; and the recipient of the May Schoon Award is Arlaidra Salter - North Carolina A & T.

The Delta Nu Alpha (DNA) Foundation is a non-profit organization, supporting education in the fields of transportation, distribution and logistics. Since its inception in 1987, the Foundation has provided numerous scholarships, research grants, and funding for the Journal of Transportation Management.

The Foundation provides continuous support of education in a changing industry. Scholarships are granted annually to undergraduate students pursuing careers in transportation and logistics and currently studying in schools, colleges, and universities with established programs in these fields. Recent recipients have included students at Michigan State University, Penn State University, Iowa State University, Missouri State University, Maryland and the University of Tennessee. Applicants are judged on academic success; career potential, motivation, and plans; recommendation and evaluation by faculty and internship; and experience related to transportation and logistics. For a list of previous scholarship recipients and other Delta Nu Alpha Foundation information go to: www.deltanualphafoundation.org.

<sup>1</sup> Kyle Groothuis returned his scholarship check (un-cashed) after determining that the scholarship award was in conflict with NCAA regulations. Kyle is on a full basketball scholarship at the University of North Florida. Kyle showed great character and integrity by returning the check to avoid any conflict with NCAA rules and regulations. Should Kyle pursue graduate school or otherwise be disassociated with the basketball team, the Foundation will be honored to consider his re-application. His grade point and overall qualifications make him one of the best.
